WILLKIE TO TALK WAR PLANS WITH STALIN

U. S. Envoy in Moscow Says Russians Won't Quit.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Sept. 21—Wendell L Willkie said today he hoped to have a long, straightforward and frank talk with Joseph Stalin because "I understand he is a man likes frankness and I like frankness too."

Willkie arrived here yesterday and rose at 6 a. m. today, spending his first morning in the Soviet capital walking the streets before breakfast He encountered columns of Russians on their way to work

After breakfast he talked with British Ambassador Sir Archibald Clark Kerr He had an appointment later with Vyacheslaff Molotov, Soviet foreign commissar.

Before coming here Willkie toured Russian factories and collective farms He declared he had been asked some 50 times about a second front and said: "I want to check a lot of things here."

Willkie said he planned to deliver to Premier Joseph Stalin a written message from President and that he already had asked to visit the front.

He said he thought the "front down in Stalingrad is just as much an American and British front as it is Russian."

President Roosevelt's special representative said he had failed to find any letdown in spirits of the war effort in Russia.

Willkie said he found the Russians appreciated the aid they have received from the United States and Great Britain "but they didn't think our aid has been enough."

Noting how often he had been asked about a second front, Willkie said: "They think that is the kind of shi they are entitled to. The second front has become almost like a symbol to them."

Marion County To Join Nationwide Scrap Drive

Move Launched To Help Carry Nation Through Metal Crisis; Started in Many Communities Today.

As the groundwork for Marion county's part in the nationwide scrap metal drive starting this month began to take shape, some sections of the country formally started their phase of the drive, The Associated Press reported today

Marion county is preparing a thorough city-wide and countywide campaign to bring in the scrap metal It is expected to get under way yet this week or early next week. The first developments are expected to come from the city and county schools, which are already busy in meetings this afternoon and tonight with their phases of the work

County School Supt D T Mills will discuss scrap metal drive plans when he meets with his school principals at his office tonight.

Supt E E Holt of the city public schools likewise plans to take up plans for the drive at a meeting with his principals this afternoon

Unified Effort

Their campaign efforts, plus those of all other groups that are interested in the scrap metal drive, are being coordinated into one general effort by the Marion County Salvage committee of which George Albe, and Clyde C. Caldwell are co-chairmen

The Marion Star, cooperating with newspapers all over the country in a scrap metal campaign, is using its efforts to promote the unified Marion county drive

As the nationwide campaign took form today, The Associated Press reported the unusual success of the recent scrap metal drive staged by the men, women and children of Nebraska—one of the outstanding scrap metal jobs to date in the United States

They did it with sweat and energy, with their hearts in it.

The Nebraskans gathered scrap for the nation's steel mills whose war production has fallen off for lack of it They did it with such unselfish devotion that newspapermen who worked with them choke with emotion when they try to tell of it

Made Nationwide

American newspapers, inspired by what happened in Nebraska and at the request of War Production Board Chief Donald M Nelson, who is worried by the dangerously low rate of scrap recovery, today joined in a nationwide drive to speed collection

Newspapers throughout the country have pledged their help in arousing their communities to a national, cooperative effort in digging through homes, plants and farms for the old metal so vital to the production of tanks, guns planes and ships.

This intensified drive began in some sections at dawn today.

Need Is Critical

If you think your help is unneeded, listen

America's steel mills can turn out 90 millions tons of steel This year they will have turned out only 85 million tons The reason Lack of scrap to produce at capacity.

The mills are gobbling scrap metal at the rate of 4 million tons a month Ordinarily they would have 6 weeks' supply of scrap on hand But they have now hardly more than 2 weeks' supply.

The government wants 17 million tons of scrap collected between now and Jan 1, when war production reaches its peak

How Nebraska Did It

The Nebraskans scoured their state by counties, cities, towns, villages, farms In three weeks, bringing in everything from hairpins found in a bird's nest to old tractors and concrete mixers, they collected 136,171,012 pounds (68,000 tons) of scrap, or close to 104 pounds for every one of the 1,315,000 persons in the state.

The secret of their success was organization set in motion by Nebraska newspapers that had been stirred to action by the fact that there was scrap all around, but it wasn't moving to the scrap piles. People weren't looking for it, or they had lost interest in looking because what they gathered was not picked up.

When the drive was over one newspaper stated:

"Nebraskans could say that no state had done so well, by a third, in all the months since Pearl Harbor as Nebraska did in three weeks.

"If this could be repeated in 47 states our nation would prevent so strong a front to the enemy, such unity in war effort, that the day of victory would be brought much nearer."

BIG RAF RAID BLASTS MUNICH

Birthplace of Nazi Party Laid in Ruins by Heavy British Bombs.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 21—Broad sections of Munich, birthplace of the Nazi party and site of important German war industries, lay devastated today under the weight of a smashing RAF attack which returning pilots said touched off fires so vast they could be seen 100 miles away.

Details of the assault were unfolded last night after the air ministry analyzed reports of bomber crews who winged their way homeward after dawn yesterday from the daring 1,300-mile round trip foray—the 11th night raid on Germany this month.

The attack on Munich was accompanied by another raid on the oft-bombed Saar industrial region in western Germany.

While the exact number of planes participating in the Munich raid was not disclosed, official reports indicated that the destruction caused rivaled that sown in other German cities in some of the RAF's mightiest assaults.

The British reported the loss of 10 planes Assuming that these losses amounted to five per cent, observers reckoned that upwards of 200 aircraft took part.

The air ministry said the raiders were over Munich for 30 minutes and loosed tons of big bombs as well as many incendiaries

(London dispatches hinted strongly that the RAF had employed some of its new 8,000-pound bombs as well as the 4,000-pound "block busters" used in many previous massed assaults.)

Advices from Switzerland, where several border cities had air raid alerts, said the detonations of bomb blasts in southern Germany were so great that the blasts could be heard far inside the Swiss borders.

The pilot of one great Lancaster who was over Munich for 20 minutes said the city was rocked

JAP BASE AT LAE UNDER PLANE ATTACK

By The Associated Press

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, AUSTRALIA, Sept. 21—Operating without interference from enemy planes, allied fighters attacked the vital Japanese base at Lae on the northeast coast of New Guinea for the third successive day yesterday, burning five barges and a tugboat and damaging shore installations.

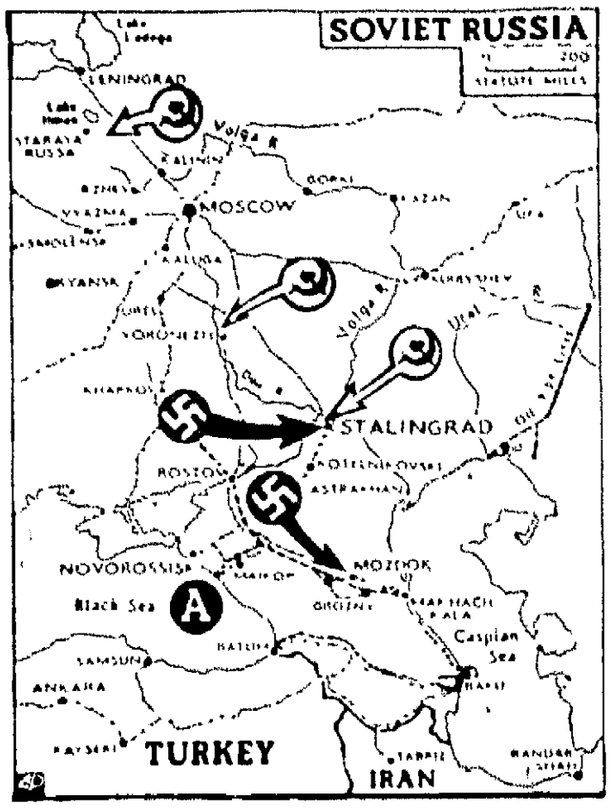
A communique announcing the raid said allied fighters and bombers also blasted Japanese supply lines extending inland from Buna, 175 miles below Lae, to Kokoda, on the route of the Japanese drive toward Port Moresby.

The assault on Buna, which touched off fires and heavy explosions, was the thirteenth on that target since Aug. 23.

On the New Guinea ground front allied headquarters reported "no change in the general situation," indicating the Japanese still were stalled at Ioribaiwa, a hamlet on the southern slopes of the Owen Stanley mountains 32 miles airline from Port Moresby.

Extensive patrol activity was reported in that sector, however, and a resumption of fighting was expected.

GUNS FLAME AS STALINGRAD HOLDS



As Soviets continued to hold Stalingrad in the fourth week of battle there, Moscow reported Red troops had captured several settlements in new offensives around Voronezh Berlin said German troops had forced Russian withdrawals in the Mozdok area of the Caucasus and that the Russians had launched big attacks along a sector southeast of Lake Ilmen on the northern front. Soviet marines were reported to have annihilated for a German battalion in their fight to hold the Black Sea coast below German-occupied Novorossisk (A).

Arnold Critical of Petrillo's Order Banning Records

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 — Thurman W. Arnold, assistant attorney general, told a congressional subcommittee today that the American Federation of Musicians was "attempting to destroy independent businesses which do not employ musicians."

Appearing before a senate interstate commerce subcommittee, Arnold testified that Union President James C. Petrillo's order forbidding his musicians to make recordings and transcriptions for radio stations and juke boxes was "an attack upon industrial freedom."

Petrillo's recent ban against radio broadcasting of music by high school students at Interlochen, Mich., Arnold said, was "an attack on individual freedom of expression."

Hearing Date Set

Arnold told the committee, headed by Senator Clark (D-Idaho) that a hearing has been set for Oct 12 in federal court for the northern district of Illinois on the justice department's motion

SHELLS BLAST CITY AS TROOPS STAND FIRMLY

Soviet Defenders Make Some Gains Despite Terrific Bombardment.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Sept 21—Thwarted in their efforts to take Stalingrad by storm, the Germans began a mighty bombardment with heavy long-range guns that shook the city from end to end today, but still the Soviet defenders held and even gained ground at some points, the Russians announced.

Shells screaming into the city tore gaping craters in the streets and the thunder of the cannonading all but drowned out the clatter of machineguns rifles, mortars as opposing forces locked in close quarter fighting in the suburbs, Pravda reported in a Stalingrad dispatch

The bloody struggle increased in ferocity by the hour and Pravda said German dead were piled high in the streets The frantic Nazis were not even taking time to remove their seriously wounded from battlefield, the dispatch said.

In the northwestern suburbs, beside of the heaviest fighting, the Russians and Germans were fighting it out house by house with the Soviet forces putting up the same valiant resistance that saved Moscow and Leningrad

But despite frightful losses in dead the Germans hurled new divisions of tanks, armored cars and infantry and swarms of planes into the battle

Siege In 28th Day

With the northwestern ramparts of the city bracked and the sky hazy with the smoke of burning buildings, the Russians held their ground for the 28th day of the siege.

They even recaptured some of the lost streets, according to advices to Moscow, but the Germans were moving in new reserves, and were making some slight progress elsewhere, yard by yard.

While the Germans sought to widen their penetration in the city, the Russians checked them in the approaches to the city and other sectors, dispatches said.

The mid-day communique said only that in the Stalingrad area "fierce fighting continued. Our units annihilated about two regiments of German infantry, destroyed eleven tanks and 40 trucks and silenced two artillery and eight mortar batteries."

The Russians also threw back German attacks in the Mozdok region of the Caucasus and southeast of the German occupied port of Novorossisk on the Black sea the communique said.

The battle for Stalingrad grew in fury as German tanks rumbled up to the city and dive bombers clouded the sky in an effort to blast a way through the brick and stones. The Russians admitted the gallant defense had reached a critical stage.

Izvestia said that "the Hitlerites are forced to recognize that never before have they met such difficulties in their offensive as near Stalingrad."

Pyramids of German bodies marked the way to the Volga, the newspaper said.

Nazis Use New Plane

The Germans sent a new Messerschmitt fighter, the 109-G into the air for the first time to protect the swarms of dive bombers. The army newspaper Red Star said the new plane, with a 1,700-horsepower motor, developed 250 miles an hour at 3,000 feet and 323 miles at 12,000 feet. The plane is outfitted with armor plates not found in the older models and is somewhat slower.

Other German troops, stalled for days in the drive on the Grozny oil fields at Mozdok, were battling fiercely with the Russians. Soviet cavalrymen were reported to have dispersed a company of enemy infantry.

In another sector of the Mozdok area, the Russians turned back a German attack launched with about 100 tanks, a communique said. Over 200 German Tommy gunners were reported killed and 18 tanks destroyed.

It was in the Mozdok region that German Field Marshal Ewald Von Kleist was reported killed Saturday by the Russians. (The Germans denied officially yesterday that Von Kleist had fallen.)

3 JUDGES HEAR JACOBY CASE

Demurrer Hearing Held and Court Takes Case Under Advisement.

Hearing of a demurrer filed by J. Wilbur Jacoby, Marion attorney facing disciplinary action, to charges filed by a Marion County Bar association committee appointed by Judge Hector S Young, was conducted this morning in common pleas court.

Whether the demurrer will be sustained will not be announced for at least three weeks, it was indicated at the close of the hearing

Presiding were Common Pleas Judges Marion B. Owen of Urbana, Fred H Wolf of Wauseon and Edmond H Savord of Sandusky, with Judge Savord acting as presiding judge They were appointed by Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt at the request of Judge Young

The hearing opened at 10:05 and was concluded at 11:40, with a recess from 11:05 to 11:20 The audience was small and from time to time attorneys came into the courtroom to hear the proceedings.

Defends Self

In opening his argument, Mr Jacoby, speaking in his own behalf, pointed out to the court that he has practiced at the Marion bar more than 45 years, and in that time has been in numerous county, appellate and the supreme courts of Ohio and in federal courts.

"During all that time I never have been reprimanded or censured in the slightest way," he said. "I have been a member of the local bar for the same period and there never have been any unpleasant occurences with any member of the local bar."

The hearing this morning grew out of charges filed Aug. 28 of this year, that Mr. Jacoby was convicted on ten counts of an indictment charging the use of the United States mails in furtherance of a scheme to defraud, and entering into a conspiracy for that purpose, that no appeal was taken from said conviction, and that said conviction has not been reversed or set aside.

Committee's Charge

The charge was filed by a two-man committee, Howard P. Guinery, and Alfred Donithen, members of the Marion County Bar Association, appointed by Judge Young "to prepare and file written charges, setting forth specifications covering grounds of the complaint." The committee was appointed by the judge following the filing of a report by the Marion County Bar association concerning Mr. Jacoby's connection with Forest Glen, Inc. In the court papers containing the appointment it was stated that Mr. Jacoby "is probably guilty of misconduct in his profession and office involving moral turpitude."

Mr. Jacoby this morning maintained that no distinct charges were set forth in the charge filed on Aug. 28.

"It is not charged in this charge

A Promise for Tomorrow

BY ELEANOR ATTERBURY

Yesterday it is one thing to be a successful doctor while looking like a debutante, Julie Hamilton finds, and quite another to be unable to do anything for the man you love. This is Pete Fowler, in Julie's case. Pete has had an accident in his plane, and is wounded for life. He is doing a great job in shipbuilding, but he wants to be with his Air Corps friends. And he seems also to want Julie to transfer her interest in him to Bart Rogers—and to have transferred his to Dawn Kelland.

CHAPTER FOUR
Clipped Wings

As she closed the big front door on the sound of Bart's car putting out of the drive, Julie noticed that the light was still on in her father's study.

Looping the soft fur coat over the bannister, she called, "Dad, are busy busy?"

"No. Come in," the big voice boomed familiarly.

Dr. Tom pulled off his glasses, put down his book, smiled at her. "Have a good time?"

She perched on the arm of his deep worn leather chair. "Fair."

"Smatter?" He took hold of her chin, pulled her face around so she had to look at him. "Not letting the practice of medicine destroy your sense of proportion, I hope? Parties and the play aren't important, you know."

"I know, Dad. If I didn't, it wouldn't be because people hadn't been telling me. You're the third one today."

Dr. Tom grinned. "Then what's on your mind?"

She rubbed her cheek against his temple so he could not watch her face. "Why are you so sure an operation wouldn't help Pete walk straight again?"

"So that's it!" He snorted impatiently. "Suppose you answer that question yourself, Doctor. You know the case as well as I do. Or you should. You've followed it closely enough."

"Because the shock to the nervous system already overstrained by the original accident, might counteract the success of relieving continued pressure on the affected parts," she recited slowly, like a careful student. "But, Daddy," she went on, "don't you think if Pete knew there might just be a chance, even a slim chance, he'd want to take it?"

Dr. Tom slapped his book shut savagely. "I haven't a doubt he'd climb onto the operating table at once. The young fool."

"Then, shouldn't we—shouldn't you—"

"No we should not." He turned to look at her.

"That boy's going to have national acclaim before this is over. I'm proud of him. He has reason to be proud of himself. Don't worry about young Fowler, girl."

She managed a smile as she turned toward him. "I suppose so. Still—" she picked up the book her father had spilled to the floor. "Who is that Belgian?"

"Refugee. Had quite interesting experience in the last war. Lecturing now at some college in the southern part of the state. He's the best in his field that I've—"

Hurry Call

The phone on the desk behind them jangled imperatively. Dr. Tom rose to answer.

Julie turned the pages of the closely printed convention report, found the name, Dr. Paul Le Meure. She must remember that. Perhaps his theories might justify her persistence in—

"What's that? Kelland, huh?" Julie glanced up, her attention snagged on the name.

Dr. Tom put down the phone, fitted his glasses into their case, clapped his pockets searchingly. "Now where did I put the car keys?"

"You can take mine. What's the matter at Kelland's?"

"Old Harry — fainting spell. Dawn says heart, maybe." He snorted, still searching his pockets. "Old Harry's heart's as strong as a steam engine. Now what the devil—"

"I'll drive you over, Dad," as she helped him into his coat.

"No need of that. You run along to bed."

She ran ahead of him into the hall, caught up her coat. "I don't feel like going to bed. Besides, you might need a consultant!"

Every light in the Kelland three-story town house was ablaze when old Jarvis, butler and major-domo of the Kelland menage for as long as anyone could remember, admitted them.

"Good evening Doctor. Good-evening, Miss Julie."

Julie suppressed a smile. Jarvis was one of the old guard who did not admit women doctors to the profession.

"You'll find Mr. Kelland in a grave condition I'm afraid sir."

"Smatter with him?" Dr. Tom growled genially.

Jarvis led the way up the spacious staircase, clucking like a ruffled hen. "I'm sure it was shock, sir. A gentlemen called to see Mr. Kelland. Very peculiar, sir. Telephoned first, sir. From the station, I gatherer. Insisted on coming out—and at this hour of the night, sir. I had just finished locking up after Miss Dawn's guests had gone, sir."

The garrulous old man hesitated outside the door of the master bedroom, finished his story.

"He rang for me, sir, said to show the gentleman out. When I returned, Mr. Kelland had fainted. I carried him up to his room. He was quite unconscious, sir."

Shock, Sir"

Dawn opened the door, motioned them into the spacious, richly furnished bedroom.

"What seems to be the matter, Dawn?" Dr. Tom asked quietly, pulling a chair up to the bedside, pulling a stethoscope from his bag.

"I don't know, Doctor. He seems to have fainted."

"Shock, sir," Jarvis interrupted like a phonograph record repeating automatically. "The caller who just went must have said or done something very—"

"You may go now, Jarvis," Dawn dismissed him curtly. "The caller he speaks of was an old friend. What shock could father have had?"

D. Tom's diagnosis came quickly. "Looks like a stroke, Dawn. His left side is paralyzed."

"But—it couldn't be! He was all right this morning—at dinner—"

Dr. Tom shook his head. "Some strain, no doubt. These things do just happen. There's nothing much we can do to prevent them. Your father's had high blood pressure for years. I warned him and he did take better care. Still these things—"

"But he must get better—it's imperative. You've got to do something, Doctor. You've got to. I can't—he's—"

"Steady, Dawn," Dr. Tom interrupted curtly. "Your father's a sick man."

Instantly Julie tightened her arm about Dawn's waist, propelled her gently out of the room.

Dawn shook her head. "It will be too late. I mean—I am to blame—I shouldn't—"

Julie stopped her abruptly. "Nothing of the sort. Don't blame yourself. I've behaved badly."

It was after two before Julie crawled under the wheel, started the motor. Dr. Tom, exhausted, slumped in the seat beside her.

"What do you think brought it on, Dad?"

"Can't tell exactly," he shrugged. "Might have been shock. Might have been over-eating. Might have been a lot of things."

Julie drove skillfully through the deserted streets, her mind still back at Kelland's bedside. "Santa Felice won't be the same town with Kelland out of the picture. He's been the symbol of wealth and power for so long."

"A symbol the town will be happy to do without, if I'm any judge," he growled dryly.

"What do you mean?"

"Guess there's not a business man in Santa Felice that doesn't hate him."

OHIO DEMOCRATS CALL CONVENTION

State Platform To Be Drafted This Week-End.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 21—Ohio Democrats will define their campaign policies in a platform convention this week-end and head directly into the drive they hope will bring victory in November, Chairman Darrell S. Jones said today.

The convention will be keynoted by U. S. Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming. John McSweeney of Worster, the party's nominee for governor, will outline his views on campaign issues.

O'Mahoney and McSweeney will speak at a session Friday night, while Saturday morning will be devoted to completion and adoption of a platform. Jones said that many features heretofore a part of the party's convention had been deleted so to expedite procedure and release delegates early.

The campaign will be in full swing Oct. 1, Jones said, with workers and candidates keeping "before the voters the reasons why today, with the nation at war, it is more essential than at any time in history that a Democratic administration be in charge of the executive and administrative affairs in Ohio."

The convention will be held at the Neil house, headquarters of the state committee.

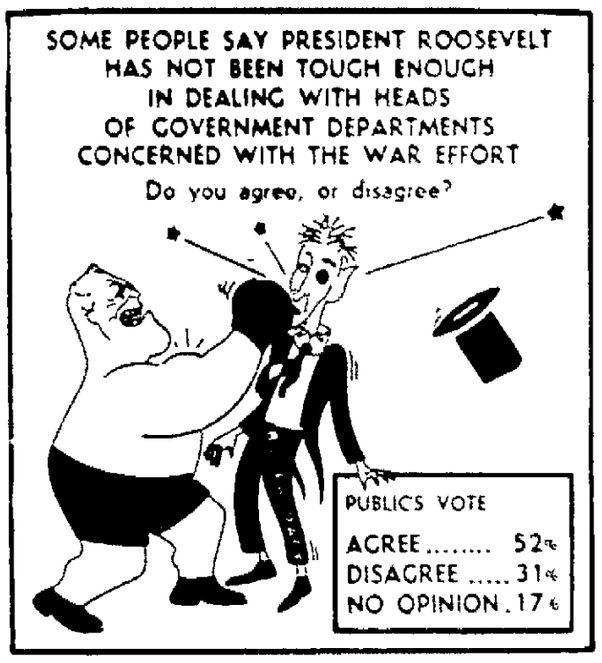
Majority Think President Should Get Tougher in War Effort, Survey Shows



SOME PEOPLE SAY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT HAS NOT BEEN TOUGH ENOUGH IN DEALING WITH HEADS OF GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENTS CONCERNED WITH THE WAR EFFORT
Do you agree, or disagree?
PUBLICS VOTE
AGREE..... 52%
DISAGREE 31%
NO OPINION. 17%

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 21—Evidence that the majority of voters are looking for more forthright and decisive action on the war program from government leaders in Washington is indicated in a nationwide survey just completed by the Institute.

This shows that a substantial number of citizens from coast to coast believe President Roosevelt should be a tougher boss in dealing with the heads of government departments concerned with the war effort.

The President still has the support and confidence of the overwhelming majority of his fellow citizens, recent surveys show, but even among those who voted for him in 1940 there is a disposition to believe that he could and should bear down more heavily on government departments in order to assure a more efficient prosecution of the war effort.

This is indicated in the replies to the following issue put to the voters in a true cross-section survey of opinion.

"Some people say President Roosevelt has not been tough enough in dealing with heads of government departments concerned with the war effort. Do you agree or disagree?"

The results for the country are

Agree	52%
Disagree	31
Undecided	17

It seems apparent from the vote that criticisms which have been voiced in recent months concerning inefficiency and delays in Washington are beginning to have an effect on the public's mind.

The Party Vote

The feeling that the President should take a firmer stand with his subordinate administrators is not confined merely to those who voted against Roosevelt in the last election.

While it is true that a higher proportion of Republicans hold this belief, nevertheless even among 1940 Roosevelt voters the feeling is shared by a substantial number.

Following is the party vote on the poll question.

	1940 Willkie Voters	1940 Roosevelt Voters
Agree	58%	50%
Disagree	25	35
Undecided	17	15

On this particular issue, the most critical attitude is found among the upper and middle income classes. Sixty per cent of voters in those groups think the President should be tougher with his department heads, as compared to only 46 per cent in the lower income group.

By sections the criticism is highest in the East Central and West Central states, lowest in New England and the South.

President's Popularity

While a substantial number of voters wish the President to be a tougher boss, nevertheless there is great approval in general of the way he is handling his job as chief executive in wartime.

In early September the Institute's one hundred and second monthly survey on the President's popularity found 70 per cent approving him in general with 16 per cent disapproving and 14 per cent undecided.

However, the vote of approval did show a decline as compared to late July, when it was 78 per cent.

Red Tape

With the time factor vital in importance in defeating the Axis powers an increasing number of Washington observers are critical of red tape requirements which consume the time and energy of administrators of the war effort.

The public, surveys show, is thinking strictly in terms of getting things done, regardless of tradition precedent, or red tape.

For that reason, the majority of voters are ready to see some sort of drastic action taken to side-step or eliminate the red tape.

One proposal is to set up a committee of judges with full power to set aside any peacetime laws and regulations which they felt were slowing up the war effort.

The Institute has found that this idea enjoys considerable public support. A recent survey showed, for example, that 58 per cent of voters are ready to see such a committee appointed.

While many objections can be raised to such a far-reaching proposal nevertheless the public's willingness to accept it is an indication of the present public mood for getting things accomplished—a mood likewise reflected in today's survey on the President and his department heads.

TIRPITZ LEAVES NORWAY PORT

Big Nazi Battleship Reported Patroling Convoy Routes to Russia.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 21—The German super-battleship Tirpitz was reported today to have left her refuge in the Norwegian port of Trondheim and to be patrolling Arctic sea lanes under the cover of Nazi warplanes in search of allied convoys.

The report was the first information of activity by the great warship since last July 9, when the Russians announced that one of their submarines had scored two torpedo hits on her in Arctic waters.

The Tirpitz was said to have holed up in Trondheim Fjord after this attack, lying there during the long summer days when her movements could easily have been checked by a recon flight had she ventured forth.

With the longer nights of autumn, however, the battleship would have a better chance of operating undetected in the Arctic.

[illegible] today said that the German [illegible] only were calling [illegible] means at their disposal in a attempt to smash allied [illegible] until war materials [illegible] reached Russia.

[illegible] statement the German high command reported that Nazi planes and submarines had sunk 34 merchant ships in a six-day running battle with a 15-ship convoy in the Arctic.

While the German claims were characterized by [illegible] as exaggerated, [illegible] sources believed that losses on the Russian supply route undoubtedly have been heavy.

Thus far the Tirpitz — the mightiest warship unit in the German navy — has played an entirely negative part in the war.

In June, 1941 she was reported damaged during a Russian aerial attack on the once free city of Danzig. In March, 1942, she was spotted off the Norway coast by the British, attacked by torpedo planes and driven to shelter.

The Tirpitz has been listed officially as a 35,000-ton ship but the British say she probably is 40,000 tons or more.

The last official appearance of the Tirpitz followed by only 24 hours a statement by First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander who announced that Britain's newest 35,000-ton battleships, the Anson and the Howe, were ready for action.

In a speech at Sheffield yesterday, Alexander declared that the British navy had all the battleships it needed and that [illegible] ships and [illegible] would be used [illegible] Alexander said.

Engineers' Office Moving to Columbus

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Sept. 21—Officers of the Ohio river division engineers headquarters resigned themselves today to moving to Columbus.

Lieut. Gen. B. B. Somervell, chief of the service of supply, ordered the transfer several weeks ago, to coordinate their vast military construction activities with those of the fifth service command, but the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce and others here started a campaign to reverse the move—to bring the service command here.

U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft, a native Cincinnatian, interceded, but after a conference with General Somervell's aids, the senator announced last night that the war department would not reconsider the order.

Officers here indicated that the move would be completed in about 30 days, or as soon as adequate office space could be found in Columbus.

Wide World Food Editor

Dame Nature certainly knows her onions this year. She has turned out a bumper crop of this very versatile food along with other vegetables and fruits to be enjoyed in relishes throughout the winter.

Spiced apricots and peaches, perky with Vitamin A, pickled melon rinds, patriotic with their part syrup sweeting and the usual run of zippy pepper and tomato relishes were never more needed.

These delicious home-makers help fill the gaps in many meals caused by food priorities.

Relishes and chutneys mixed in sauces for vegetables or fish dishes or added to dressings for salads and sandwich fillings give a come-hither look to many a fall meal.

Old-Fashioned Piccalilli: Wash and dry 5 pounds of firm green tomatoes (not peeled, but blossom ends discarded.) Wash and dry 5 large-sized green peppers, cut in halves, discard seeds and pulp. Peel 15 onions, about 1½ inches in diameter. Put all vegetables through chopper or chop in a bowl. Add 2/3 cup salt and let stand, covered, over night. Drain thoroughly and lightly press out the liquid with a spoon. Transfer the vegetables to a kettle and add 2 cups diced celery, 1 cup chopped sweet red peppers, 2 cups vinegar, 2/3 cup sugar, 1 cup light corn syrup, 1½ teaspoons ground cinnamon, 1/3 cup whole pickling spices loosely tied in white muslin cloth. Slowly bring to boiling point and simmer 30 minutes or until thick. Stir frequently with wooden spoon. Discard the spice bag before canning. Store in cool, dark, dry place.

Aunt Pattie's Chili Sauce: Scald and peel ½ bushel of firm ripe tomatoes. Bring to boiling point in large kettle. Add 5 cups each chopped green peppers and white onions, 2 cups chopped sweet red peppers, 2 cups diced celery, 1 cup sugar, ¼ cup light colored corn syrup, 1 3 cup salt, 2 tablespoons mustard seed, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves and 2 cups vinegar. Cook slowly over asbestos mat set over low heat until sauce thickens—this usually takes between 2½ and 3 hours. Pour into sterilized jars and seal at once. Since some vegetables take more salt than others it is advisable to taste the sauce before it has finished cooking, and add more seasoning if desired.

Dill Pickles can easily be made today by us[illegible] [illegible] dill is not available. No sugar is called for. Wipe [illegible] 50 firm green cucumbers (3 to 4 inches long). Cut in [illegible] crosswise and sprinkle with ½ cup salt. Let stand 4 hours. Drain and add 2 cups thinly sliced small white onions, 2 tablespoons celery seed, 2 3 cup white mustard seed, ½ cup shredded sweet red peppers, 5 cups vinegar and 1 cup oil. Mix thoroughly and pour into sterilized jars. Seal and let ripen 2 weeks or so before using. Store in cool, dark, dry place.

Bancroft Corn Relish: Mix 8 cups diced celery, 1 cup each chopped green peppers and onions, 3 cups chopped cabbage, 1 3 cup salt, ½ teaspoon paprika, 2 tablespoons dry mustard, ¼ cup celery seed and 2 2 cups vinegar. Boil gently an hour or until thick. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal immediately.

Quick Frozen Food Values

BY ALICE DENHOFF

When it comes to clearing the hurdle of hurry-up meals, there's nothing like quick-frozen foods. If Red Cross or other war work keeps you on the run all afternoon, you'll find it easy to whip and place on the table a satisfying, excellent meal with most of the time-consuming job of sorting and cleaning done for you. Radish roses thrust into the centers of lemon slices, fried tomatoes or crisp curls of bacon are an eye-appealing garnish on a platter of broiled fish. A little pep-le-relish heated and added to quick-frozen broccoli just as it is going to the table adds interest. If you haven't time to prepare hard-cooked egg for spinach, sprinkle it with a little grated lemon peel or garnish with narrow strips of pimento rolled in curls.

Fish Filets

Fish is an excellent choice for the main dish of a hurry-up meal, for it's an excellent and thrifty source of body-building protein. For a splendid and satisfying dish serve cod filets, creamed peas and carrots and you'll have a dish nice enough for "company." To serve 4 to 6 portions cut 2 packages quick-frozen filet of cod in several servings. Saute 4 tablespoons chopped onion in 2 tablespoons butter until tender. Add fish, ½ cup boiling water, teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper. Cover and cook gently 12 to 15 minutes or until fish is tender. Drain, reserving liquor, and add milk to make 1¼ cups. Place fish on platter, arrange toast points around fish and cover to keep hot. Cook a box quick-frozen peas and carrots according to package directions. Add fish liquor and milk gradually to 2 tablespoons flour. Stir until sauce is smooth, and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add peas and carrots. Reheat. Remove from fire, add ¾ cup grated cheese and stir until cheese is melted. Pour over fish and toast points.

Broccoli With Relish

For Broccoli with pickle relish drop one box (10-oz.) quick-frozen broccoli into one cup boiling water, salted, bring again to boil and boil gently 6 or 8 minutes or until stalks are just tender. Drain and arrange on serving dish. Melt tablespoon butter, add 2 tablespoons Indian relish or other chopped pickle, heat thoroughly and pour over broccoli and serve at once. This will serve 4.

Bacon Omelet in Day's Menu

BY BETSY NEWMAN

If you can't get your usual generous supply of bacon, use less of it. Serve one slice to each person instead of two or three or more. Make it go further by mincing it and adding it to scrambled eggs, omelet, griddle cakes, etc. It is a good food, but mostly fat, and we can return part of what we use to the government by straining the fat and taking it back to the butcher.

Today's Menu
Bacon Omelet Creamed Potatoes
Spinach Pear Salad
Molasses and Corn Cake

Bacon Omelet
2 tbsps. butter, 3 eggs, ½ tsp salt, 2 tbsps. cream, dash of pepper or paprika, 2 tbsps diced cooked bacon.

It is easier to make a nice puffy omelet if the last part is done in oven. Heat oven to 350 degrees. Melt butter in frying or omelet pan. Separate eggs, putting the yolks in a small bowl, the whites into a large one. Add salt to whites and beat until stiff but not dry, and set aside. Add pepper and cream to yolks and beat quickly; then fold yolks into whites with diced bacon, and turn into heated pan. Cook over low heat until browned underneath but immediately into oven and cook until top part is firm when touched with the finger—about 15 minutes. Fold over and serve immediately. Suffient for 2.

Molasses Corn Cake
2 cps yellow corn meal, ½ c molasses, ½ c sugar, 2 tbsps butter, 1 tsp salt, 1 c. sour milk, 1½ cps sweet milk, 1 c wheat flour, 1½ tsps baking soda, 1 egg.

•Mix first 7 ingredients in a double boiler and cook over hot water for about 25 minutes after mixture has become hot. Cool, then add wheat flour and soda thoroughly sifted together, and egg, well beaten. Bake in a shallow tin at 350 degrees until done, about 45 minutes. Serves 6.

Let's Show Adolf Where He Made

HIS BIGGEST MISTAKE!

Maybe you didn't know it, Adolf, but you led with your chin when you and your sneak-thief pals, started swinging at Uncle Sam.

You see, Adolf, this is a war of production. Behind our boys in the armed forces is another army, 50 million strong . . . and I mean strong. We call them Soldiers of Production.

And when it comes to turning out tanks, guns, and planes, Adolf, they just can't be beat. Why, America invented mass production—didn't you know? That's why, already, we're passing our goals. And you know what those goals call for—185,000 planes, 120,000 tanks, and 55,000 antiaircraft guns in 1942 and 1943. You laughed at those figures—said American workers couldn't do it. Well, we're doing it, Adolf—we're doing it!

And that's not all. We're not only building planes and tanks and ships to smash you once and for all—we're paying for them, too—10% of our pay every pay day.

No one makes us do this, Adolf. We're doing it because we know that everything worth living for is at stake here. And we're doing it so that we'll have a nest-egg for the future. Because Uncle Sam is going to hand us back (in 10 years) $25 for every $18.75 we invest in War Bonds now. That's the voluntary American way—but you wouldn't know about that.

And—get this, Adolf—it isn't just a few of us who are buying Bonds to swamp you with guns and planes and torpedoes. It's millions of us, asking our employers to set aside 10% or more of our pay for War Bonds every pay day.

Yes, the American worker is doing his part. You kind of forgot us, Adolf, and whether you know it or not, sooner or later you'll agree that was your biggest mistake.

SCRAP METAL, OUR NO. 1 NEED

THROUGHOUT the country communities are entering into scrap metal campaigns which promise to yield the largest collection recorded since the start of the war. It is imperative that this promise be fulfilled. The results must be nothing short of tremendous in order to meet the country's industrial requirements and prevent grave impairment of production of vital war equipment.

The need for scrap metal has been designated as the nation's most critical problem at this time. That is unquestionably true and it is a need which must be supplied immediately and in full measure.

Scrap is America's most precious metal in this emergency. For the time being, at least, gold in comparison is virtually at zero.

Here in Marion a recent collection of scrap yielded something like 50 tons and that was doing pretty well. But there are hundreds of tons more in the city and county that must be gathered in and sent on its way to the plants where guns, planes, ships and ammunition are made for defeating the foes of freedom.

Several scrap metal salvage drives originally scheduled in the county have been merged into one and leadership has likewise been consolidated for a new countywide collection about to start. That is a sensible arrangement and one which should be maintained until the close of the war. It is the system which wins on the battlefields and will also win here on the home front. Scattered forces loosely operating can't get maximum results.

Communities throughout the country are going to hit new high marks in this latest gigantic scrap metal drive. This they will do because a crisis is at hand and they have been called upon to meet it. Marion county will, of course, respond to the call with all its resources and in so doing maintain the outstanding record of home front service that has been ours since the outset of the war.

The community salvage committee should make this drive one grand cleanup of all the scrap metal in the city and county. To accomplish this hundreds of well-organized collectors must do a thorough job. Every nook and cranny of homes, business places and farms must be made to yield every piece of the precious metal, large or small. Any campaign less thorough than that will fall short of requirements.

Stability for the Stabilized

THE General Motors wage increase comes at a bad time in discussion of wage and price stabilization, a job the President says must be finished by Oct. 1. It calls attention to what probably is the most important thing about the rising spiral of costs; that the government is interested in controlling the spiral, not in stopping it. Control, moreover, threatens to be discretionary—stability for the stabilized and heaven help the rest.

For instance, while industrial labor is encouraged to believe that wage rates will be adjusted to living costs and that labor's annual income will benefit from the war boom within reason, Secretary of Agriculture Wickard hints about "freezing" farm labor to the soil, and President Roosevelt publicly opposes inclusion of farm labor costs as a factor in computing parity. The hired man can't get aboard the rising spiral if he stays put and he should be made to stay put, according to administration points of view.

His plight is like the one in prospect for the salary earner, who scans the news in vain for any rumor that he is going to be stabilized. He hears only that his salary may be frozen, but he knows for certain that his living costs and taxes will rise steadily. His confusion about wage and price stabilization, like that of the farm laborer and everybody else who never managed to become organized in a bloc with special agencies in Washington looking out for his welfare is a sad thing to behold.

New Top Man for the Middle

CHARLES E. WILSON, General Electric Co. president, is expected to handle the complications of war production in his new public position as head of a joint executive committee of army, navy, air force and maritime commission representatives. His job will consist largely of reconciling the demands of these departments with one another and with demands of production as a whole, which is the responsibility of his immediate superior, Donald M. Nelson. Mr. Nelson's inability to do this with his previous organization has been an increasingly serious embarrassment.

Like all the other businessmen who have preceded him in responging to the appeal for executive talent in government organization, Mr. Wilson will find himself in the middle, the predestined fate of his type in wartime. It is their special function to stand between what needs to be done to assure victory and what can be done within existing limitations. They must erase as many of the limitations as possible to narrow the gap; if they fail to narrow it sufficiently, they become the scapegoats for the discrepancy. They deserve more gratitude for trying than they can expect to get. Next to the men who do the fighting and dying in battle, theirs is the greatest responsibility imposed by war.

News Behind the News

Hitler's Forces at Stalingrad Furnish Evidence of His Weakened Military Power.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—Hitler has reversed the test of the records of his military strength in the conquest of Stalingrad. What he produced there, therefore, offers a workable estimate of that power as it is left.

He used about 500,000 men in the drive. The Russian press estimates thought the Reds were facing a million, but their latest count would be around half that sum.

These were not used all at the same time. Flying wedges of about 75,000 troops manned the front attacking lines. They were withdrawn every few days for a rest and another 75,000 replaced them.

Not more than a million Nazi troops are strung along the vast expanses of the rest of the front line, from the Arctic to the Caucasus.

The best troops were, of course, called into the Stalingrad front and the million holding the other sections of the line represent what was left, some being newly trained, some Italians, Rumanians and Finns, who have been practicing for months under German supervision.

About 400,000 Italian troops have been re-trained by the Germans. Yet there are still about the worst of the lot. The Finns and Rumanians are much more highly regarded.

Behind this front line are about a million men in what might be called the third class troops, the reserves to relieve the front liner.

On the only other Nazi fighting line, in Libya, Rommel has never had more than 100,000, including Italians, although published reports of his strength sometimes exaggerated this figure by 50 per cent or more.

So you see the total German military machine now in this third year of the war, is not the same vast efficient striking force which went spinning through Poland, Belgium, Holland and France.

In actual fighting power, it seems to number only a little over 2,500,000 of which the 500,000 facing Stalingrad can still be classified as the crack troop (and there have been rapidly used up).

While the Nazis still talk about their army of 8,000,000 or 10,000,000 men, about three-fourths of this vaunted strength represents fourth-class troops doing police duty in occupied regions. This fourth class includes many riddled with wounds, the very young and the untrained, and the over-age.

At Stalingrad, Hitler also produced about 1,500 planes, representing probably all the remaining air striking power. It is still a good air force, but far from the 5,000 planes Goering used to brag about.

Shortage of pilots, as well as materials, Britain bombings, and sabotage, probably has cut Hitler's rearm to this extent. Pilots cannot be made in a day, or a year, and the training which gave the original air force a superior efficiency will never be possible again during this war.

We have been fooled too often by reports and expectations of German disintegration to relax our efforts even in the face of these encouraging trustworthy figures. But they show that the war is not necessarily being lost by us on that point. They remove cause for discouragement.

Nazi Raids On Britain

The British have been putting out a sentence or two every night about German bombing raids on Britain, finally announcing a few days back that 400 civilians had been killed in the last month during these raids.

These nightly Nazi forays seem to have no military objective. They are not aimed at industrial centers or munitions works and, apparently, have no continuing plan.

About 15 or 20 German bombers come over and hit a town, generally a point near the coast. For a while they concentrated on cathedral cities and those of purely historical value. Most of the British 400 casualties were suffered in one town one night.

The Germans are merely feebly and blindly punching at non-military British objectives to keep as many British planes as possible at home at night, and away from continental raids.

The weakness of the effort is a further evidence that German striking power is not what it was.

It may be different this winter when Hitler can use what is left of those 1,500 planes from Stalingrad for night attacks on Britain.

Bigger Jobs for Women After War Predicted.

By ADELAIDE KERR
Wide World Features Writer

MRS. LINVILLE MARTIN, National Junior League president, thinks the war is going to boot women upstairs into bigger jobs.

"It's going to push them into more important work than ever before—if they deserve it—and they'd better get ready," the soft voiced Southerner warns.

"We're in the midst of a social revolution. Class consciousness is out."

Take that from the head of 36,000 Junior Leaguers, most of whom have Social Register backgrounds.

"There is going to be greater equality after this war and we'd better be educating ourselves for the part intelligent citizens will have to play in the new world we live in. It's important for people to begin right now reading and thinking about a permanent peace, so that we will be patient this time in evolving a workable plan and not be in such a hurry to slam back to normalcy."

To "broaden the outlook and toughen the thinking" of the nation's Junior Leaguers, Mrs. Martin and her supporting committee plan to add a good stiff course on world affairs to the 1943 agenda.

"It's intelligent service we want—not just dallying," Mrs. Martin says. "War work is community work. We have to keep the home front strong or else why win the war if we are going to lose what we are trying to protect. If we send our boys out to fight for democracy we've got to live it at home.

"Anybody who is fortunate enough to be born to a good home, education and plenty of good food owes the less fortunate members of society some help. It's like the parable of the ten talents. They have got to be spent in good hard work which makes the community a better place to live in."

This Week in the Sky

(Prepared especially for this page by the Hayden Planetarium of the American Museum of Natural History in New York City.)

• • •

THIS WEEK, the earth reaches the halfway point in its annual journey around the sun. In a larger sense, this is a man-made decision; the orbit of the earth being a continuous thing, some agreement had to be reached as a starting point. It was decided to use the point at which the sun crosses the equator on its way north in the spring—the Vernal Equinox, as it is called—March 21. Now the sun is going the other way and crossing the equator heading south. Officially, we recognize the event as the Autumnal Equinox, the beginning of fall.

The full moon will be in the sky this week, on Thursday evening, the 24th. With the clear early fall air which is due at this time conditions are ideal for beach parties and other outdoor events such as hikes, picnics, and open-air dancing parties.

Planets will still be found only in the morning sky, Saturn and Jupiter holding the stage for the most part, with Venus appearing somewhat before the sun rises. The fall constellations will begin to be found once more in the eastern sky, but until the moon has once more waned from its full brilliance, none of them will be seen to very good advantage.

NEW FOE ON HOME FRONT

America of Tomorrow Will Live On Wings

By M. D. C. Crawford in The Women's Wear Daily.

THE phrase, "All of our bombers returned to their bases," has become almost a formula of the news. We know how to build the best, fastest, and the stoutest planes, we breed and train the men who can fly them with courage and determination and success.

This supremacy in our hour of need did not come to us without foresight and planning on the part of our airplane designers, manufacturers, mechanics and pilots. Back of our war eagles there lie years of preparation, experiment and vision. The pinions of the wings of Victory did not sprout with the beginning of this war. Had we waited until then, it might have been too late. These same designers, builders and pilots are now preparing for peace.

In a recent advertisement of the American Airlines Inc. there appears this significant paragraph:

"As our air men fight they also are drawing the blueprint of our nation's status in the post-war world. They are laying the aerial foundation, around the globe, for America's future trade and commerce. They are designing the new pattern of our lives."

It will be through our control of the air that the peace of the future will be securely administered. This war has brought to all of us a new conception of terrestrial space in terms of time. It means not a bit less, new forms of business, new markets, new products at home and abroad, and new responsibilities.

War Brings New Methods

All of our great wars of the past two centuries have ushered in, with peace, new methods of transportation, new ways of getting about, new measures of space. This war will be no exception. Both the war and the peace we will win in the air.

It was after our Revolution (but not until Jefferson's first term of office) that Washington's dream of a national highway, connecting the east and the west, was started. As a youthful border surveyor, as a soldier of colonial Virginia, he had seen that island, between the two rivers, which is now called Pittsburgh, and which was then threatened by the French armies from Canada. He recognized it to be the gateway to the west, the roadway to the south, the key to a prosperous and secure future for this young nation. In the first decade of the 19th century his dream came true, and a stone-covered highway, leading from Philadelphia across the Alleghenies, drew our middle western country into contact with the trade cities on the Atlantic coast.

This road (which was strongly objected to by conservative men) reduced the freight charges from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, which were $6 to $10 per 100 pounds, to $1.75 to $2.50 per 100 pounds, or, in other words, four-fifths of the freight charges were eliminated by a stone highway for Conestoga wagons.

It was after the War of 1812-1814 that the minds of men were turned to the possibilities of canals, and in 1817 we began to build the Erie canal, and completed it (with a celebration in this city) in the year 1825.

Age of Railroads

Before the middle of the 19th century men of vision in America were dreaming of railroads and steam locomotives. There had been experiments in South Carolina, Maryland, Pennsylvania and New York. But these were almost local affairs. Our first trans-continental railroad was named the "Union Pacific," because it was built to connect California with the east. It was begun in the memorable year of 1862, when the very fate of the Union hung precariously in the balance of war. It was finished in the year 1869.

It was in this same year that the Suez canal was started, connecting the Mediterranean and the Red sea, and cutting off 5,000 miles of the journey between the east and the west. So, in a single year, the distance between the Orient and the Occident had been reduced twice by two-thirds—by new methods of transportation.

World war I brought us the modern automobile and a convincing demonstration of the efficiency of mass production by serial mechanical movements of precision instruments and interchangeable parts.

It is time that we adjusted our thinking to a world commerce largely implemented and controlled by air travel. What effect will this have on existing methods of transportation? What changes will it bring in the form and character of merchandise? What cities will, in the future, become the centers of trade, industry, travel and transportation? What changes will be effected in the nature of our fabrics and in the character of our garments?

There are no priorities on the imagination. There are no restrictions on brains. We are at the dawn of a vast change in our social, commercial and industrial habits, and it is time that we gave these matters serious thought. The airplane is a decisive war weapon. It will be the dominant feature in peace.

Brace Yourselves

This Country Will Discover What Means To Go to War; Easy Days Are Numbered Now.

By DAMON RUNYON

BY the middle of next year, the majority of the people of the United States will practically afoot as far as transportation is concerned. Nearly all of our youth and many of our middle-aged men will be in uniform. Food and other necessities will be severely restricted as to constitute a real pinch for the civilian public.

Then we may commence to realize what total war really means.

I do not think that the present picture of America at war, with tremendous spending and gambling going on everywhere and luxuries still used with great freedom for the purposes of pleasure and with folks enjoying most of their usual luxuries, reflects anything but a state of apathy or complacency on the part of the public.

I think it is because even yet many of the people just do not understand.

Those of you who have been endeavoring to adjust yourself to war conditions in advance of the coming of the real squeeze may think it strange that anybody else can fail to see what the future holds, but it is ever so with the human race. The parable of the provident ant and the improvident grasshopper is constantly being exemplified by the actions of men and nations.

THE months that have passed since Pearl Harbor constitute a strange era in this country—an era of packed cafes and gambling and swilling in public and in private and all the other license of high living suddenly possible by the mightiest torrent of fresh money in the history of any nation that produced prosperity even while economy was being generally preached.

But I believe this era is now drawing to a close and that its like will not again be seen in this country until long after the war. I speak not in prophecy. I merely utter a statement of fact. Those who have been deluding themselves that they are making great sacrifices by forgoing a few minor privileges while eating at full boards and partaking of 90 per cent of their normal conveniences and comforts may as well make ready for the bad news.

The mere scratch of war felt by this nation will soon become a deep and painful cut.

It has been my observation over a fairly long span of years that it seldom does any good to warn the people of anything that threatens their peace of mind or physical ease. I have seen this observation confirmed of late months by the complete disregard of most of the people of the innumerable warnings issued from Washington. These warnings have gone in one ear of the public and out of the other, so to speak.

I MIGHT be more impatient with this attitude if I did not remember that our people came to the war and the boom money of the war off one of the longest periods of depression the world has ever known, during which they were denied, in many cases, even the bare necessities of life. Few living men have experienced here at home the full meaning of a long, drawn-out war.

Not since the great conflict between the states has this nation been involved in a war long enough for the wash to reach the people as a whole in its demands for self denial and sacrifice. But it is coming now. You can hear the roar above the criticisms of small events of administration that will mean nothing a few months hence.

Ladies and gentlemen, brace yourselves for a real shock.

More Fuel Oil

Office of the Petroleum Coordinator for War, ritularly headed by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, has another plan cooking to change normal refinery practice in the eastern states. The government needs to increase the production of fuel oil while reducing the production of gasoline.

Refineries normally operate to get as high a yield of gasoline as they possibly can, simply because the demand for gasoline is greater and the price is higher.

Average for the eastern states last year was a production of 38 per cent gasoline and 23 per cent fuel oil from the crude run through the stills.

What the OPC experts now propose is to make approximately a 20 per cent change in those figures, so that refineries would get from their crude 30 per cent gasoline and 31 per cent fuel oil. If all the refineries in the eastern seaboard states should make this change, however, they would face a loss of some 30 million dollars in the gross sales value of their products.

What the petroleum industry would like is either a shift in ceiling prices paid by consumers, reducing the price of gasoline to make it less profitable to manufacture, or an increase in the price of fuel oil to make it more profitable.

The gross amount paid by the public to the refineries would be the same, but they would be paying different amounts for different products.

If this idea can't be sold to the Office of Price Administration, watch for an alternative proposal that the government subsidize the refiners so they could still refine more fuel oil to sell for around 7 cents a gallon and less gasoline to sell at 16 cents a gallon (without taxes) and still make the same amount of money.

Vital Plywood

Possible shortage of plywood has been started the army in the face so hard that campaigns are now being planned—including movie shorts and posters to tack on trees—in an effort to persuade lumbermen to stay on the jobs in the logging camps and sawmills, instead of quitting to take jobs in shipyards.

The problem is particularly acute in the northwest, which produces 45 per cent of the nation's lumber in big, spectacular operations.

Patriotic lumbermen have felt they would be doing their country more good in the shipyards and the unpatriotic ones feel that they stand a better chance of dodging the draft if they work on ships.

Local selective service boards have added somewhat to this confusion by refusing to grant occupational deferment to lumberjacks. Evacuating the lumbermen and the draft boards face the job which Army and War Production Board face now.

• • •

Q. Does it matter whether the agreement to rent is made verbally or by written lease?

A. No.

Q. What facilities usually go with an apartment?

A. Heat and hot and cold water, a superintendent or handy man to perform the duties usually termed "janitor service." This includes the removal of garbage and trash at given times of the day; cleaning halls, stairways, lobby, and maintaining the general appearance of the apartment building. The immediate repair or adjustment of minor breaks, such as the installation of a blownout fuse, the repair of a leaking water faucet, the unjamming of a stuck flush toilet. In addition, apartments in many sections of the nation are equipped with refrigerators and stoves, which the landlord keeps in working conditions.

• • •

Q. What services usually go with a rented house?

A. Unless otherwise specified at the time of the rental agreement, these services usually include: keeping the house in repair; painting and redecorating at specified times; providing the heating unit and keeping it in repair; linoleum for the kitchen; screens. Services provided vary in different sections of the country according to local custom. Under federal rent control, these services provided on the date fixed by the price administrator as the maximum-rent date, must be continued by the landlord.

• • •

Q. What are some other specific services which may be included in a landlord-tenant agreement?

A. Such an agreement may include telephone service, laundry facilities or privileges, window shades, storage space.

• • •

Q. What about elevator service?

A. If elevator service was provided when the agreement to rent was made, it must be continued.

• • •

Q. Does that mean that if there was an elevator operator in an apartment building on the maximum-rent date, the landlord must continue employing an operator?

A. Yes, unless the landlord has filed a petition to decrease services and the rent director has issued an order permitting the decrease. In such case, the rent director will use discretion in determining how great a factor an elevator operator is in the total rent charged.

• • •

Q. What constitutes a furnished house or apartment?

A. The amount of furniture necessary to furnish a house or apartment naturally depends upon individual taste. However, a house or apartment rented as furnished must contain amply sufficient furniture for the needs of the tenant.

• • •

Q. What if the landlord, without the tenant requesting it, removes some of the furniture from an apartment or house after he has rented it as furnished? Can the tenant get a reduction in maximum rent?

A. Yes, on application by the tenant, the rent director will adjust the rent.

• • •

Q. Is exterminator service included?

A. If an exterminator service was provided on the maximum-rent date, it must be continued.

• • •

Q. What if the war makes it impossible to continue some of the services that a landlord has been providing, what happens then?

A. Where it is impossible to continue the services, the landlord must file a petition with the area rent director within five days after the change of service, asking for an order to decrease the services. The director's order granting this decrease will also contain reduction in rent if circumstances warrant.

• • •

Q. What about special services?

A. Any service, no matter how great or how small, which the landlord agreed to provide at the time of the rental agreement, and which was still being provided on the date determining the maximum rent, must be continued.

• • •

Q. What about a house which is rented where there is a garage on the lot? Can the landlord make a special charge for the garage?

A. If the garage was included in the rental agreement, even if the tenant does not use it, the landlord can not make an extra chage for it after the rental agreement has been made. It is considered part of the "services" going with the house.

Albers SUPER MARKET

LARGE PARKING LOT (One Hour Free to Albers' Customers)

225 EAST CENTER ST.

Old-fashioned faith and confidence is the sound foundation upon which this enterprise is being built. Experience has taught us that the housewife wants to buy food of good quality at the right price with confidence and cheerful, courteous service. We know the confusion caused her by the advertising of a few food prices at or below cost and many others unreasonably high. We know how unfairly she is treated when an article is advertised at 19c after she paid 24c the previous days for the same item. Such methods force her to buy in many stores and even then she does not have that complete satisfaction she should have.

ALBERS ORIGINATED the now famous ONE-PRICE POLICY to overcome this confusion and unjust method of food selling. Albers One-Price Policy means that Albers have the same low prices every day. Albers prices change only when our cost or market changes. If we can sell an article for 19c on Friday and Saturday, we will have that price whenever you patronize us. We guarantee not to charge you 24c for the item because you buy on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday. We do not use "loss leader" selling below cost as a "bait." But we do protect you by meeting all "special" or "bait" advertised prices but do not sell below cost.

THESE POLICIES HAVE MADE ALBERS FAMOUS

One Price—No Specials

The same low price—the right price—every day. No Friday and Saturday specials on a few items with higher prices on other days.

Low Prices

Every item at the lowest possible price, which means large savings on your total cost of all foods. Comparisons by many thousands of customers have proven this.

Messenger of Clarington, took place Sunday morning in the Wesley Methodist church. The custom of open church was observed for the double ring ceremony read at 8 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. D. N. Kelly.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin gown, fashioned with a square lace yoke, outlined with tiny seed pearls and leg o'mutton sleeves ending in points at the wrists. The full, gathered skirt extended into a medium length train. Her fingertip length veil was edged with pearls and fell from a halo, the cap of which was covered with pearls. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom and she carried a cascade bouquet of white pompons and chrysanthemums.

The bride's attendants were Mrs. Vernon Williams of near Lorain, matron of honor, and Misses Evelyn Snyder of Marion and Irene Hall of Richwood, bridesmaids. Mrs. Williams wore a floor-length pink taffeta dress, with a sweetheart neckline, puff sleeves and full skirt. Streamers of blue velvet extended from the neckline of the gown. Her flower hat and shoulder length veil was in pink, her Colonial bouquet held shell pink carnations and blue delphinium. The bridesmaids wore identical gowns, fashioned with sweetheart necklines, puff sleeves and full skirts. The fitted bodices were joined to the skirts with a row of ruffles. They wore silver slippers and carried Colonial bouquets of yellow pompons and blue delphinium. Miss Snyder was in blue and Miss Hall's gown was in a yellow shade. All wore single strands of pearls gifts of the bride.

Gloria Ann Lashey, a cousin of the bride, lighted the candles. She was costumed in a floor length dress of aqua taffeta made with a sweetheart neckline, puffed sleeves and a full skirt trimmed with pink velvet bows at the hemline. Her hair ornament was a gardenia.

Alfred Messenger, brother of the bridegroom, served as his best man and ushers were Paul Anthony and Jack Fisher.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Moehn chose a black crepe dress with black accessories and the bridegroom's mother wore a black sheer dress with matching accessories. Both wore corsages of roses and pompons.

Two baskets filled with white gladioli, palms and tall lighted tapers decorated the altar for the ceremony. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Ray N. Lovett of LaRue and Mrs. Willard Ginder sang. Mrs. Lovett played "I Love You Truly," "Ah! Sweet Mystery of Life," "Indian Love Call," and the traditional wedding marches. Mrs. Ginder sang "All for You," and "Oh, Promise Me." During the ceremony Mrs. Lovett played "Liebestraum."

At the Moehn home where the bride's parents entertained with a reception for close friends and relatives, the table held a bridal cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom.

Because of wartime rationing of gas and tires the bride and bridegroom are taking a wedding trip by motorcycle. When they left on their white motorcycle they were costumed in twin riding outfits, black boots, tan breeches, black leather jackets and green camp caps. Upon their return they will take up their residence in their newly-furnished house trailer on the Richland road "for the duration."

The new Mrs. Messenger is employed in the office of the Commercial Steel Castings Co. and Mr. Messenger is assistant manager at the Cussins & Fearn store.

Mrs. Ralph Good of Olney avenue entertained with the rehearsal party Saturday evening. At that time the bride-elect presented her matron of honor and bridesmaids with their gifts, a silver charm bracelet to Gloria Ann Lashey, and perfume and lace handkerchiefs to the pianist and soloist. Mr. Messenger's gift to his best man was a fountain pen and to the ushers he gave tie clasps and key chains.

Fall flowers in the bride's colors decorated the rooms and presiding at the table were Miss Mary McGhee and Mrs. Merle Lashey.

MARION YOM KIPPUR SERVICES OPENED

Allan Tarshish of Columbus Speaks to Group.

"Because of its inherent democracy, Judaism is and for centuries has been regarded by the savage adherents of Germanism as their natural foe," Allan Tarshish of Columbus declared in a sermon last night opening the observance of Yom Kippur, "Day of Atonement" by the Marion Congregation of Israel.

The observance continued with service at 10 this morning and 2 this afternoon and closed with a memorial service at 4 p. m. in memory of the late Mrs. Carrie Cohen, mother of Mrs. Albert Loeb.

All services were conducted in the temple room at Prospect and Center street. Music was in charge of Mrs. Victor E. Dombaugh.

A large group of guests from Bucyrus and other nearby cities attended last night.

Mr. Tarshish spoke in part as follows:

"The keynote of Yom Kippur is the divine assurance that guilt can be atoned for by penitence, prayer, and righteous action. Each individual must pray for himself. This concept follows the inherent democracy in Judaism which considers all men equal before their Maker.

"Because of its inherent democracy, Judaism is and for centuries, has been regarded by the savage adherents of Germanism as their natural foe. It was against Jews that Hitler, the assassin and thief, whom the German people are following as leader, directed the opening move in his attack upon civilization.

"Human brotherhood and human equality have no part in the German scheme of world domination, which is the essence of the order which the gangster nation of the Rhineland would impose upon the world.

"To establish that order, Germany and its cowardly satellites are waging war upon religions that teach the truth of human brotherhood and upon democratic nations founded upon the laws by which the tenent of equality is upheld and applied."

U. S. FACES LOWER LIVING STANDARD

Nelson Tells Legion Pinch Will Come in Year.

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 21—Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the war production board, warning that the country must accept a "very much lower standard of living" in order to win the war, asserted today that "we have hardly begun to feel the pinch, so far."

"We are going to feel it very acutely before we are a year older," he said in an address prepared for delivery at the national American Legion convention.

"It is my considered opinion that we are going to have to cut farther and more deeply into our civilian economy than even the British themselves have done yet—with the single exception of food.

"We are going to have enough to eat throughout this war, and we probably will not have to put any very drastic limitations on our range of choice in that regard, but in almost every other respect we are going to have to be ready to do without—and do without—and do without until this war has been won."

Nelson explained that the country hadn't yet felt the pinch of war yet "because our shelves were full."

"We have been living on our fat so far in this war. Believe me, we aren't going to have an ounce of fat left in another year. We'll be down to bone and muscle, because we have to get down to bone and muscle in order to win."

Right now, he pointed out, approximately 40 per cent of the country's production was going for war and by next year this would be increased to 60 per cent. All of this means "no more luxuries, no more gadgets, no more comforts xxx except what we simply must have if we are to keep fighting."

As an example of what it means to put victory ahead of everything else, Nelson used the American automobile.

"We have upwards of 25 million passenger cars in America today. Our country has been rebuilt around those cars. xxx If they should all break down this country would be hopelessly crippled. Our farms would not produce as they should, our great factories would not operate, our ability to turn out the things our fighting men need would be fatally handicapped.

"Therefore, your car is not just your car any more. It is a part of your country's vital transportation system. If you wear it out by needless driving, you are doing your part to break down your country's ability to win this war.

"So obviously, if you want a nation united for victory, you will use your car only for driving that you absolutely have to do. Sure, it's your car, but this is your country, too. How badly do you want your country to win the war?"

In other words, he said, pet interests, money, comforts, advantages and business or group interests—"none of these things count any more."

BURTON READY TO BACK DRAFTING OF 18-19 GROUP

Advocates Lowering of Service Age Limit.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—Senator Burton (R-Ohio) was ready today to support legislation to draft young men 18 and 19 years old.

The senator said his radio speech in New York last night advocating lowering of the age limits was made after careful consideration of the problem.

"If our military authorities request this draft, congress should authorize it," said the senator in his speech.

"We are at war. The choice is between painful alternatives. It is a choice between requiring military training and service, on the one hand, of men of 18 or 19, usually single, without dependents and not established in earning their living, or on the other hand, of men of 21 up to 45 years of age, each with a wife, and one or more children and generally established at a trade or on a farm. To be controlled by partisan or political considerations on this issue is treason to our cause. It must be decided solely on the facts and in the interests of the nation and of our people as a whole.

Finns' Desire To Quit Looks Like Feeler for Peace

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

The Finnish minister to Washington, Hjalmar J. Procope, has dropped a bomb big enough to reverberate in many capitals, both axis and allied, in his announcement that "Finland wants to cease fighting as soon as the threat to her existence has been averted and guarantees secured for her lasting security."

If we label this extraordinary move as a fishing expedition for a peace offer, we probably shall encounter an official denial from Helsinki. Still, that's exactly what it looks like—a trial peace balloon. Between the lines there seems to lurk the hope that Uncle Sam will overlook that Finland is an ally of the Hitler he has sworn to crush, and will persuade the Russians to make some proposal.

It might seem that it didn't matter a great deal whether tiny Finland waged war or not. But Finland is a mighty atom in this conflict. The safety of Russia's whole right flank from Leningrad to the Arctic is involved.

Would Aid Russia

Peace would be calculated to relieve the pressure on the Red lifeline port of Murmansk, which the Nazis are attacking from Finnish soil. It would ease the whole situation in the Gulf of Finland.

Of course, we can't say in advance whether the Nazis might not be able to circumvent peace in some manner, since they have troops in Finland. However, a passive or unwilling country would place one more obstacle in Hitler's way.

Why should the Finns suddenly decide to get from under? It's only 15 months ago that they cast their lot with the Nazis in the face of American and British warnings. That was when Hitler's troops were grinding all Europe under their hob-nailed boots, and there was nothing in sight to stop them.

Finnish Field Marshal Baron Mannerheim's chest even now is jangling proudly with metal which Hitler and Mussolini awarded him recently as an honored ally. The Nazi fuehrer went to the extreme of visiting Finland in June for the express purpose of congratulating the commander in chief on his birthday.

One can see several reasons why the Finns might want peace. One is that the Finns may now see themselves allied with a loser.

Reds Step Up Attacks

Then, too, we have the notable coincidence of heavy Red attacks against the Finns recently, which speak stoutly of the Russians' ability to carry on the war. The resources of the little country must be running very low, and there has been a terrible drain on their manpower. The Germans can't help them much with supplies.

The Finns undoubtedly are anxious to regain the friendship of the United States. It was a sad day when our little colleague, whose loyalty we had boasted and toasted, joined hands with the arch enemy of Christendom. The Finns said they had to do it to adjust their mighty grievance against Russia. But Uncle Sam and John Bull didn't figure it that way. Finland—or was it largely Baron Mannerheim?—made a terrible mistake.

U. S. AIRMEN MAKE 23 RAIDS ON JAPS

28 Enemy Planes Shot Down Without American Loss.

By The Associated Press

CHUNKING, Sept. 21—American airmen made 23 bombing raids on Japanese installations in occupied China, French Indo-China and Burma in July and August, shot down 28 Japanese planes and probably six more and destroyed 30 enemy craft on the ground without the loss of a single bomber in combat.

These figures were given in a summary today by Lieut. Gen. Joseph Stilwell's headquarters which listed the loss of five American fighters during the two month period. The pilot of one fighter was known to be safe, it added.

The Chinese air force provided ground personnel for the American planes and the Chinese air warning service contributed considerable aid.

The bomber crews and technical personnel were all of the U. S. army air force, as were the fighter pilots, including a small number of "flying Tigers" who joined up after the AVG was disbanded on July 4.

For the first time in five years of war in China, the American airmen provided effective and widespread support to operations by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's ground forces.

Highlights of the operations in July, when 10 bombing raids were made without loss of American planes or personnel from enemy action, included three attacks on Hankow, the chief Japanese base in central China.

After one raid a tower of smoke rose over the target area and was visible for 30 miles, the summary said.

Three raids also were carried out against Japanese air bases and fuel installations at Canton in South China. At least 10 planes were destroyed, a riverboat was sunk and a number of fires were started among warehouses along the river.

Direct hits were scored on two hangars and several aircraft destroyed at Napchang, chief Japanese base in Kiangsi province.

STIMSON HARD AT WORK AS HE REACHES AGE OF 75

Eldest Cabinet Member Keeps on Job in War Dept.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—Henry L. Stimson reached 75 today, and associates said he appeared to be carrying his wartime responsibilities with as much vigor as when he became secretary of war more than two years ago, when the country was at peace.

The oldest member of President Roosevelt's cabinet planned to take note of the anniversary only by reading congratulatory messages at his desk in the munitions building.

If he had any thought of retiring, to turn over to a younger man the task of directing the war department's vast activities and supervising the expansion of an army already grown to four million or more, he gave no indication of it.

Actually, according to a military associate who has seen him almost daily, Stimson is "more vigorous and keenly enthusiastic" over his job than when he became war secretary on July 10, 1940, almost at the same time that a fellow Republican, Frank Knox became secretary of the navy.

LEGION OPENS RANKS TO NEW VETS' GROUP

To Ask Congress To Change Charter.

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 21—The American Legion wants to take in today's fighting men.

The Legion's national convention voted yesterday to open its membership to the present veterans and to ask congress to amend its charters so it can be done.

The action came by a resolution—one of several approved by the convention's 1,500 delegates. One of them reaffirmed the Legion's stand against strikes and discrimination in employment at war production plants.

The Legionnaires pledged complete support to the President in prosecution of the war; condemned persons refusing to bear arms for the nation and petitioned congress for legislation barring government employment of conscientious objectors.

The question of a 1943 convention was left for the executive committee to decide.

JACOBY

that the crime of which the respondent was convicted in one involving moral turpitude," he declared, and in the course of his argument he maintained that the crime of which he was convicted in federal court at Columbus "was not an offense under laws of this state."

Refers to Trial

He spoke once of the fact that the case in which he was "unhappily involved," required seven months to try and that the jury considered the case for a week and took more than 600 ballots "before convicting some 35 persons."

Mr. Jacob cited numerous cases of similar proceedings in the courts of New York, Wisconsin, Idaho, Washington and Kansas. One Ohio law of 1885 stated that grounds for disciplinary action against an attorney must be stated distinctly in the grounds of complaint.

Mr. Jacoby also read definitions of moral turpitude, describing it as "an act of baseness, violence, depravity—a base or shameful act."

Judge Wolf asked Mr. Jacoby for a clearer interpretation of his opinion on disbarment proceedings and Mr. Jacoby replied:

"An attorney guilty of misconduct involving moral turpitude can always be tried irrespective of any convictions."

The brief recess followed his statement that his demurrer should be sustained by the court.

His demurrer, filed Sept. 1, contained six grounds:

1. The crime under which he is alleged to have been convicted is not a crime under the laws of Ohio; 2. the conviction set out in the complaint was not had in any court of Ohio; 3. it is not charged that the crime of which he was convicted was a crime involving moral turpitude; 4. the charges do not allege any act done by him involving moral turpitude; 5. the charges do not set forth and charge distinctly any ground or grounds of complaint which warrant any disciplinary action by the common pleas court under the laws of Ohio.

Speaks for Committee

Mr. Guthery spoke for the committee. He said "it was the committee's thought that when you added 'involving moral turpitude' (to the charge) you were merely stating in the language of the statute." He said the committee admitted the charge of which Mr. Jacoby was convicted in federal court is not on the statutes of Ohio but that in federal courts it is a felony.

"The courts haven't defined in words what 'moral turpitude' is and the committee hasn't found a very satisfactory definition," he told the court.

"The committee filed the charges on the premises that anything involving fraud involves moral turpitude," he continued. "If the committee is wrong there the committee is wrong all the way through. . . . If the court decides fraud involves moral turpitude and conviction of this crime does involve moral turpitude, then it must decide whether the conviction of an attorney in a federal court of a crime involving moral turpitude is grounds for disciplinary action in Ohio courts."

Mr. Guthery said the committee desired to keep personalities out of the proceedings and stay strictly to the legal aspects. He said that whether the charges are sufficient is a question for the courts to decide.

"The committee thinks they are," he said in closing.

At the close of the hearing, the committee filed a brief opposing the brief in Mr. Jacoby's demurrer and Mr. Jacoby filed a reply brief.

Cardinals Need Five Victories To Clinch National League Pennant

Five Dodger Losses Also Will Settle Pennant Question; Indians Split.

By The Associated Press

IF THE St. Louis Cardinals are doing any worrying today it must be how to get world series tickets for their friends or how to keep their wives from buying any new furniture before the end of the week.

The struggle for the National league pennant has now been reduced to the point where the Red Birds can clinch it with any combination of five victories of their own or five defeats for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Since the Cardinals have six games left to play, that means they can lose one of them and still win even though the Dodgers capture all seven of their remaining tussles.

There doesn't seem to be much prospect of Brooklyn turning the trick. The best they could do against the Cards in their double-header yesterday was make it a double-header.

Cooper Wins, 1-0

Hamner pitched a five-hit 2-0 shutout against the Cards in the second game of a double-header for his 19th victory after the Cardinals' Morton Cooper had given the Cubs a four-hit 1-0 whitewashing.

Cooper's feat came in an all-fight duel with his former teammate, Lon Warneke, who scattered seven singles but was defeated on a double steal which brought Johnny Hopp home in the fourth inning.

Brooklyn was beaten in the first game 7-3. Whitlow Wyatt, the Dodgers' No 1 star, was knocked out in less than four innings when Danny Litwhiler and Nick Etten hit home runs, the latter with two aboard. Credit for his victory went to Tommy Hughes.

Buck Newsom, self-styled pennant insurance for the Dodgers, pitched six-hit ball to win the nightcap 4-2 and kept Brooklyn's pennant hopes from dying.

Today Brooklyn has another date with the Phils at Ebbets field and the Cardinals returned home for the first of two encounters with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Harder Hurls 2-Hitter

All the other major league action yesterday involved doubleheaders and all were divided except Cincinnati's clash with the Pirates. They battled 13 innings in the first before the Pirates won 2-1 and then played a 3-3 tie in the second, halted at seven innings by Pennsylvania's Sunday curfew.

The New York Giants' games at Boston were postponed.

In the American league the New York Yankees beat the Boston Red Sox 2-1 and then lost 3-2 in eight innings when darkness halted play. Gerry Priddy batted in all New York's runs in both games.

The Philadelphia Athletics closed their season a week ahead of time, by a quirk of the schedule but no doubt to the relief of all concerned. Washington beat the A's in the first game 11-9 with a seven-run rally in the ninth, and Philadelphia salvaged the nightcap 2-1.

Old Mel Harder pitched a two-hit 2-0 shutout against the Detroit Tigers but the Cleveland Indians dropped the second session 6-5. The Chicago White Sox took advantage of four errors by the St. Louis Browns to win their first game 6-5, but the Brownies took the afterpiece 4-2.

Eddie Lukon Paces Columbus To Win A.A. Playoff Finals

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 21—The mighty bat of Eddie Lukon placed the Columbus Red Birds within a single game of the American association Governor's cup championship today.

The Flo k won its third straight yesterday, 2 to 1, in 11 innings and as win the case Saturday night, it was Lukon's circuit smashes that turned the trick. He hit for a round-tripper twice, once in the seventh inning to tie the count and again in the eleventh to score the victory margin.

The blows brought to four the home runs he has hit in the three series games, his first was in Friday's 9 to 0 rout of the Hens, the second Saturday night with two mates aboard to tie up the game and put the Birds in position to edge ahead to a 6-4 triumph.

Red Munger got the mound assignment for the Birds tonight, and will face Ewald Pyle, Toledo's hope of salvaging at least one game of the series. The victor meets the International league playoff champion in the "Little World Series."

Preacher Roe allowed the Hens but five hits, and kept them scoreless after the first inning when Bob Dillinger led off with a double, then scored on a fly and an infield out. Harry Kimberlin was nearly as good for the Hens, except that he couldn't handle Lukon. He gave up nine hits and struck out seven Red Birds.

RAMS WIN, 24-14, OVER PHILADELPHIA

Parker Hall, Jack Jacobs Pitch Touchdown Passes.

By The Associated Press

AKRON, O., Sept. 21—The Cleveland Rams got two perfect touchdown passes from Parker Hall and his substitute, Indian Jack Jacobs, to smash the Philadelphia Eagles here yesterday, 24 to 14, for the Rams' first National Professional Football league triumph of the campaign.

With the game tied at 7-all, Jacobs faded back and fired a perfect pitch 48 yards to Halfback Jack Boone on the Philadelphia 10 and he went over.

Hall sent a 57-yard effort into the arms of End Johnny Wilson on the Eagles' goal and the Rams had a 24 to 7 edge, aided by Chet Adams' field goal a few minutes earlier. Philadelphia tallied a last period touchdown on a pass from Tommy Thompson to Ernie Steel.

Both clubs tallied on freak plays in the first quarter. On the first play from scrimmage the Eagles scored as Gaylon Smith fumbled a wide pass which Vic Spears recovered on the Cleveland 20 and carried over. The Rams got a break when Len Barnum's attempted punt from his 10 was blocked by the Rams' Jim Benton, and Johnny Wilson chased it over the goal for a touchdown.

Other National Football league scores:

Chicago Cardinals 13, Detroit 0.
Washington 28, Pittsburgh 14
Chicago Bears 14, Eastern Army All Stars 7 (exhibition).
Brooklyn 35, Ken Strong's All Stars 3 (exhibition).

RESTRICTIONS OF WAR PLAY HAVOC WITH OHIO SCHOOL SPORTS

24 Schools Give Up Football, Some Will Play, Others Uncertain.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 21—Ohio's high school schedule for 1942 was a hodge-podge today as war-time restrictions caused changes galore in what had been termed "the toughest scholastic league in the land."

A year ago 428 Ohio high schools played 11-man football, and 25 others "went for" the six-man game. Both figures are down this season.

H. R. Townsend, state scholastic athletic commissioner, in answer to requests for schedules, had replies today from about 400 of the 524 schools which participated a year ago. The answers showed a bit of practically everything.

Some Shelve Games

At least 24 schools announced they had given up the game for the duration; others found their schedules stripped to one, two or three games; others reserve the privilege of retiring from the scene should gasoline be rationed, while only 10 were definitely in the six-man field.

The Hope-Dale principal expressed the views of a host of the institution heads when he filled in his schedule card with a terse: "No football! No coach! No transportation!"

Along with Hope-Dale, in checking out for the duration, were Wood field, Bowerstown, Bradford, Jackson township of Burgoon, Coulton, Dayton Parker, Frankfort, Jefferson, Jewitt, Leipsic, Louisville, Marlboro, McDonald, Manchester, Merrerville, North Baltimore, Rock Creek, Scio Republic, Milton of Sterling, St. Bernard, Jacksonville Trimble, Uniontown rural and Howland of Warren.

Rising Sun and Salineville said they would cancel all games if and when gasoline is rationed; Clyde split its schedule by booking five six-man contests, and three with the full 11—and will start its home games at 6 p. m.; Hamden had only an Oct. 23 game with McArthur on its slate.

Many Uncertain

"Probably shall not play football. Team too small, too few. However, the boys are practicing, and we may line up two or three games as soon as corn cutting is over. Will send you word."

Louisville Marlboro's cancellation was ordered by the board of education, McDonald dropped out because of the transportation problem, while Manchester declared "our athletic department's in the army."

Definitely in the six-man field were Fairfield township of Columbiana, Garrettsville, Howard, Jackstown, Liberty-Union, Midvale, Monclova, New Waterford, Twinsburg and Avon village.

Townsend said he expected to "have the entire picture by the end of the week."

Meanwhile, although the smaller schools were having their difficulties, practically all the larger institutions launched their campaigns over the week-ends. Many of the visiting teams used private cars to make the trips, the automobiles being furnished by Booster and other civic club members.

Harding, St. Mary Grid Teams Ready for Opening Battles Here This Week

Both Marion Harding and St. Mary gridders wind up preliminary practice this week for their 1942 tapdamals in Harding stadium this week-end.

The Red and Black clad Presidents will run up the curtain on 1942 football in Marion by entertaining the Cowboys of Columbus West High school in a nocturnal game Friday night. Probably no Harding eleven faces as great a job as the present edition. Last year's team, unquestionably one of the greatest in local scholastic annals, completed an eight-game campaign without a single point scored against them. Only one scoreless tie marred the otherwise perfect record. The 1939 and 1940 teams compiled equally outstanding records. In 1939 Harding recorded its first undefeated season. A loss to Barrington which resulted in a scoreless tie in the North Central Ohio league, was the only defeat suffered by a powerful 1940 team.

Tiffin Calvert jumped Galion by a 19-0 score Friday night in making the toughest opening game opponent in several seasons. Calvert will come here Saturday night.

Harding Is Favorite To Stop Cowboys

While Columbus West's Cowboys come here Friday night with one game already under their belts, Marion Harding's powerful Presidents will be strong pregame favorites since West succumbed 33-0 to Newark in the lid-lifter Friday.

In the starting Harding lineup Friday night will be five returning lettermen headed by Capt. Keith Williams. Other lettermen are Harold Jenkins and LeRoy Harvey in the backfield and Don Kay at tackle and Tom Hurst at center.

These five youths, plus a host of others who saw considerable varsity play last year but failed to earn a letter, will take the leading role in Harding's 1942 drive.

For the first time in many years, all Harding and Edison sophomores will play with the varsity squad this season. This will mean a varsity squad numbering 30 at home and about 25 on the road. Sophomores, normally forming the reserve squad, were placed on the varsity roster this season in line with a plan of Coach Victor Dorris to give junior high gridders two years additional experience and retain seasoned players one more year of varsity play.

These changes brought about a plan in the junior high football system in which only seventh and eighth graders will play, leaving freshmen boys for the reserve squad. Games with two three or more four-quarter reserve teams may be added Coach Dorris announced recently.

Fritzie Zivic To Fight Johnny Walker Tonight

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 21—Veteran Fritzie Zivic, of Pittsburgh, puts his boxing skill tonight against youthful Johnny Walker, of Philadelphia, in a 10-rounder at Convention hall.

The 10-year-old Walker ruled an overnight 5 to 1 underdog despite the terrific punch he packs. In 14 fights as a professional, he has won 12 by knockouts. As long as he still can swing he is counted to be dangerous to the former welterweight champion.

DRAFT DODGE CULTS NABBED IN ROUNDUP

FBI Arrests Members of Three Chicago Groups.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 21—The FBI announced today a roundup of about 80 Negroes, leaders and members of three Chicago organizations which federal agents said were aimed at defeating the selective service law.

Of the 12 leaders of the groups, 11 have been apprehended and charged with sedition and conspiracy to commit sedition. The members have been charged with violation of the selective service act by allegedly failing to register or to comply with directives of their local draft boards.

Albert Johnson, special agent in charge of the Chicago FBI office, said the roundup started yesterday and was completed last night. His account of the arrests was:

One of the organizations is the Peace Movement of Ethiopia, headed by Madame Mittie Maud Lena Gordon, who uses the title of president general. The organization boasts membership of 4,000,000 Negroes in 46 states.

Madame Gordon claims the members are citizens of Liberia and as such belong to the same race as the Japanese. Several members of the movement have been convicted of failing to register for selective service and admitted their actions were motivated by Madame Gordon's teachings.

The second organization is the Brotherhood of Liberty for Black People of America. Its founder and president is Stokley Delmar Hart.

The third group is called the Temple of Islam. One leader of the temple is Elijah Mohammed, whose real name is Elijah Poole, but is also known as Elijah Muck-Muhd, the prophet.

FEED PRODUCTION AT ALL-TIME HIGH

Biggest Corn Yield on Record Is Predicted.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 21—Upward revision of government estimates, indicating U. S. feed production this season will be at an all-time high, has relieved grain trade apprehension that continuation of war-time meat, milk and egg output of record proportions might not be possible.

The biggest corn yield per acre on record, with one of the nation's few three billion bushel crops in the making, as well as near peak harvests of oats and barley have given the livestock feed picture a more optimistic tinge recently.

Latest estimates showed total production of corn, oats, barley and grain sorghums—major livestock feeds—will be 4,933,446,000 bushels compared with 4,361,325,000 last year and the 1930-39 average of 3,823,816,000. In addition, production of all hay, including tame, wild, clover, timothy and alfalfa, will total 166,035,000 tons compared with 149,599,000 tons last year and 128,227,000 for the 1930-39 average.

These increases in feed grain and hay production of about 13 per cent over last year conform with the anticipated increase in the nation's livestock population, grain men said.

In addition to the big domestic crops of 1942, livestock feeders can draw on substantial carryover stocks although the corn supply left over will not be as large as a year ago. However, total corn supply, including new crop and carryover, is estimated to be around 3,500,000,000 bushels, compared with 3,300,000,000 last season. Furthermore, the U. S. can use some of its record wheat supply for livestock feed and, under international agreement, can import feeds from Canada, where oats and barley crops are more than double last year.

Private estimates indicate the Jan. 1 population of hogs may be about 74,000,000 head, or 23 per cent greater than on Jan. 1 this year. Cattle and calves population is expected to be around 77,000,000 head, an increase of less than 3 per cent. The combined increase would be about 12 per cent, virtually matching the grain in feed production this year.

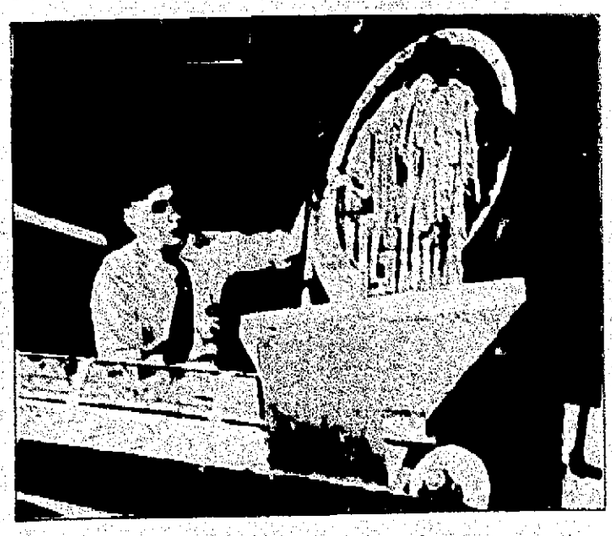
SYNTHETIC RUBBER PLANT IN OPERATION



This is how synthetic rubber looks as it goes through a tuber in the new synthetic rubber plant which United States Rubber company recently placed in operation in New England. The tuber is a machine, like a meat grinder that squeezes large chunks into smaller pieces, and in so doing removes water from the rubber. From here the material goes into a drying oven and then into a mill where it is finished in sheet form.

Members Wanted for Marion Rifles and Women's Ambulance Corps Units

New Classes To Be Started Tonight at Meetings in Harding Stadium and High School.

Draftees and men who are eligible for war duty in the near future are wanted by the Marion Rifles for enrollment in a new company to be started in military training tonight at 7 o'clock at Harding Stadium, it was announced today by Robert Brown, captain in the civilian defense medical corps.

Training is voluntary and enrollment will not affect any one's draft status, Mr. Brown said. Boys of 16 years of age and up are eligible.

The training received at home will be beneficial in army training, the sponsors believe. The drilling will be in charge of First Lieut. Lawrence Foreman, Second Lieut. Earl Farley, and Capt. Brown. Capt. Brown, who was discharged as a sergeant at the close of World War I, said today that military training received as a high school cadet proved most beneficial to him in his army training.

Girls and women who have completed Red Cross first aid training are asked to join the women's ambulance corps, when a new class will be started tonight at 7:30 o'clock at Harding High school.

An effort is being made to build up the membership in both the ambulance corps and the Rifles.

AIR RAID WARDENS TO STUDY BLACKOUT

Meeting Called for Tuesday Night at Central Jr. High.

A "must attend" meeting of members of the air raid warden section of Marion's civilian defense organization will be held tomorrow night at 7:30 in Central Junior High school auditorium, Earl Ruhlman, chief air raid warden announced today. Those who will attend are captains and lieutenants of civilian defense and air raid wardens and their assistants.

The purpose of the meeting is to study blackout preparations and to give instructions as to how Marion's new blackout ordinance will work. Plans will be made for the cooperation of merchants and home owners in making an actual blackout possible, and for the assistance of the police department in extinguishing any lights not put out voluntarily at the blackout signal.

A demonstration with problems which would be encountered in a blackout will be featured.

Toledo Election Expert Stricken in Texas

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 21—William E. Galvin, 53, Democratic clerk of the Lucas county board of elections and a leading figure in Lucas county politics, died last night of a heart attack while visiting his son, James, U. S. army flying cadet at Pecos, Tex.

Galvin was secretary of a nationwide census of the unemployed directed by John D. Biggers, president of Libbey-Owwens-Ford Glass Co. He directed Toledo's proportional representation count at each city election and helped the city of New York install the plan. A year ago he was sent the secretary of state to investigate the Lorain county board of elections.

County Official, St. Paul Man To Talk to Clubs

Edward F. Flynn of St. Paul Minn., will speak at a meeting of Marion Rotary club tomorrow at noon on "Shores of Opportunity." He is a past district governor, a past director of Rotary International and a member of the St. Paul Rotary club. Mr. Flynn has held the positions of mayor of St. Paul, city attorney and past president of the Commercial Law League of America.

Thursday noon Harry V. Mounts, county auditor, will speak to the Kiwanis club on "Taxation."

CALLS FOR DECISION ON MANPOWER NEEDS

Wants Ruling on Army and Industry Requirements.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 — Chairman Tolan (D-Calif.) of the house special committee on defense migration, citing "the absence of a final authority to allocate our manpower resources," declared today that "the time has come when some clear decision between army and industrial needs must be made."

"With a projected army of ten to thirteen million, it is apparent that many additional millions must replace the men taken from war industry," he said. "Our manpower is limited."

His statement was issued after Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey indicated that more than 10,000,000 Americans would be in the armed forces by the end of next year.

Calls for childless married men will start going out generally in December or January, Hershey said, as the supply of single men, including those with dependents, becomes exhausted.

Married men with children will be called beginning around Oct. 1, 1943, unless congress authorizes the drafting of 18 and 19 year olds. Approximately 2,230,-

St. Mary Honor Roll Blessed at Service

The "honor roll" listing names of men of the parish now with the armed forces was blessed following the 7:30 o'clock mass Sunday morning at St. Mary Catholic church. Rev. Fr. Benedict Rubeck, O. M. C., of Our Lady of Carey seminary, Carey, spoke the blessing and led the congregation in prayers for those in service. The pastor, Rev. Father William J. Spickerman, was the celebrant of the low mass and the day marked the general communion for the women of the parish.

Former Resident of Marion Dies

Relatives here have received word of the death Friday night of J. D. Johnson, 68, of Kalamazoo, Mich., a former resident of Marion. Five children, all living in Michigan, and several nieces and nephews in Marion survive. Mr. Johnson was a painter. He was the last of a family of seven children. A sister, Mrs. Olivia Pickering, died several months ago. Funeral services will be held Tuesday at Kalamazoo.

Hit-Skip Driver in Accident Here

In one of two auto accidents reported to city police over the week-end, a car driven by Warren Heller, 24, of 320 North Main street was struck by a hit-skip driver early Sunday morning on Kenton avenue at the intersection of a drive leading to the Erie roundhouse.

Cars driven by Ernest P. Williamson, 30, of 802 Wilson avenue, and Frank N. LeMaster, 40, of 370 Park boulevard were slightly damaged in a minor collision Saturday afternoon in front of 197 East Center street.

101st Freshman Class Arrives at Wesleyan

DELAWARE, O., Sept. 21—Ohio Wesleyan university's second century began this morning when the 101st freshman class arrived on the campus. Pre-enrollment figures indicated the class may be larger than last year's freshman class.

President and Mrs. H. J. Burgstahler will give a reception for the freshman Wednesday night in Stuyvesant hall.

Students this year have a choice of two academic programs: The regular four-year course or the accelerated program which permits students to graduate after compiling 29½ months of actual classroom work.

Checkup of Stoker Urged To Prolong its Life

A coal stoker is a valuable mechanical device. In these times when the government has tried to impress the nation with the necessity of caring for the things they have rather than seeking new ones, it is important to remember that servicing a coal stoker will add years to the life of it.

Only by proper care can the homeowner expect to get the most out of his stoker. Preheating sensonal checkups are very necessary to the stoker, since they determine whether the stoker is in shape for the heavy work that it is expected to do efficiently.

Buying Centers on Cheaper Issues; Variations Small from Start.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—Buying demand again centered in low-priced stocks today although support remained for selected market leaders.

Variations were small from the start. Plus marks were well distributed.

Numerous pivotals failed to register on the ticker tape or were late in opening.

Sentiment was divided regarding overnight war news. Many customers kept their positions in neutral territory while waiting more light on the forthcoming tax bill and final congressional decision regarding price-wage legislation. As in the past several weeks, specialties were propped by individual situations.

Modest improvement was recorded for Western Union, U. S. Rubber and Sears Roebuck. Faltering at intervals were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, J. I. Case and Westinghouse.

RYE, WHEAT PRICES IN SLUMP TODAY

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 21—Rye prices slumped more than a cent a bushel and wheat almost that much today as the grain market retreated under selling profit takers, hedgers and dealers disturbed by price control developments.

Weakness of rye was based on talk that it may not benefit from higher basic crop loan rates provided under the pending price control legislation. Both wheat and corn were depressed by hedging sales.

Discovery Eliminates Use of Natural Rubber from Synthetic Products

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Wide World Science Editor

NEW YORK — One of America's big tire worries, the need of natural rubber in all synthetic tires, has been eased, and possibly solved, by two chemical discoveries.

First, the DuPont company is making military tires, which means the strongest possible kind of tire, from their neoprene synthetic rubber, without adding a drop of natural rubber, not even in the bead of the tire. So far as is known, this is the first tire in the world to be made completely of synthetic.

The other discovery, from the American Cyanamid & Chemical Corp., is that where natural rubber has to be added to make a synthetic tire, guayule, the Mexican and American bush rubber, takes only half as much for the job as the hevea tree, which up to now, is the source of all natural rubber in use.

Threat To U. S. Supply

So much natural rubber was required with the synthetic, up to 40 per cent of all the rubber in a tire, that this drain might have broken down the American rubber supply, even with success of the synthetic program.

The importance of the DuPont discovery was indirectly emphasized by the Baruch committee. It stated that "neoprene is the one synthetic rubber which has been shown to be the full equivalent in quality of natural rubber for combat and heavy duty tires, either by itself or in combination with Buna S."

Buna is the butadiene rubber which is the major part of the synthetic program. How much natural rubber will have to be added finally to this synthetic to make good military tires depends on the mileage-wrecking climates of American chemists. Until this year, DuPont's engineers reported addition of natural rubber. But in eight months of war the DuPont chemists not only have solved the problem but have put the tires into production in Buffalo.

Some time ago buna S, the butadiene rubber, was actually taking more than 50 per cent natural rubber in some tires made for the government. Not that much is needed now, and chemists hope to get rid of need for any natural rubber.

Science Acts Speedily

Such is the speed of war science that the neoprene discovery, one of the major achievements in the entire history of synthetic rubber, went by without even an announcement. From abroad only the Russians are rumored to have a similar achievement of synthetic tires needing no natural rubber. The Russian report has not been confirmed.

But if true, the Russian discovery is vital to America, because their synthetic rubber is the butadiene, buna S type.

Guayule does the job with 20 per cent added to buna rubber. For this reason Cyanamid is doubling the capacity of its Mexican guayule plant at Cle Hulera De Parras in the state of Coahuila.

Figures on guayule have been kept under cover for military reasons. Congress appropriated $2,000,000 to finance American guayule, and advocates of this rubber say that by next spring about 100,000 acres may be in production, yielding perhaps 100,000 tons of natural rubber.

MARION GUARD UNIT DOES FIELD WORK

Training Problems Studied by Men of Co. H.

A field exercise held Sunday at Crystal Lake park by Co. H of the Ohio State Guard was most profitable and successful, Capt. Carl F. Ehert reported today.

The men reported at the Armory at 10 a. m. and marched to the park with full field equipment, where problems involving scouting, patroling, signaling and extended order drill were worked out. The park is ideally located and provides a fine place for drills, battle formations and company activities, Captain Ehert said.

Newly-commissioned Captain George D. Hildebrandt, was a guest for noon. The meal, prepared by Sgt. William Dixon and his staff of cooks, included "mulligan stew" and the trimmings and was voted "tops" by the company and guest.

The blood contains about 11,000 white corpuscles per cubic millimetre.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

Water

PEOPLE WRITE and ask me how much water they should drink a day as if there were some rigid standard for it. I do not think there is. The requirements of the body vary from time to time. We need more water in the summer because we lose more from the skin.

Thirst is one of the most delicate regulators of any of the general bodily sensations—far more reliable than hunger. We are often hungry when we do not need any food, but thirst does not trick us that way and you may be perfectly certain that if the body content of water goes even the slightest decimal point below normal, you will get thirsty in a big way and demand water.

Does the sense of thirst ever deceive us? Or, to put the question another way, would drinking water more than the actual needs of the body dictate be good for some people? Possibly. It is an indication that constipation is dependent more on lack of bulk of the food than the use of avoidance of any particular kind of food, that extra water drinking and nothing else will often be sufficient to overcome it.

Regular bowel evacuation is a function of the left side of the large intestine and that is stimulated to contraction by any peristaltic wave. Putting anything in the stomach starts a peristaltic wave. That is why after breakfast is the usual time for the daily evacuation.

The peristalsis initiated by breakfast goes down the entire digestive canal until it hits the segment in the lower bowel where a 24 hour accumulation is ready to be moved on. There must be time for another accumulation before peristalsis exerts any action, which is probably why lunch and supper cause no action.

Many people are constipated simply because their food ingestion lacks bulk and many more because it is too dry. For these deliberate extra water drinking is a logical remedy.

One prominent physician points out that many women drink only two or three glasses a day and contends that a person who is constipated should drink two quarts a day.

This seems to be the concensus of opinion of those physicians who have studied the question—eight to ten glasses of water a day for any who tend to be constipated. Excessive amounts may be helpful in some cases.

The use of a glass of water on first arising in the morning as a treatment for constipation has plenty of support not only from practical experience but also from theoretical science. Hot water should be used, because, as Schule showed long ago, hot water escapes from the stomach faster than cold. The heat increases powerfully the movements of the stomach walls, and also causes the pylorus, the exit from the stomach, to open, thus allowing the water to pass rapidly into the intestine. This is an explanation of its relief in case of stomach pain. The glass of water should be sipped slowly while dressing before breakfast.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

"THAT is one of the things I want to explain to you," I told her.

"I will hear nothing against Carolyn," she flared. "For child has told me how you all have persecuted her."

"Lillian, Lillian!" her husband chided. "This isn't like you—to hear only one side of a story. Won't you hear what Madge has to say?"

She looked up at me after a moment, her eyes brimming with tears.

"I never refused to listen to you yet, did I?" she asked me.

"Never," I told her emphatically, "and all I ask now is that you let me finish before you give your verdict."

"I won't interrupt," she said.

Harry rose and put Lillian into the chair, saying "I'll just take myself off."

"Why?" Lillian and I queried together, then added with one voice, "Don't go!"

"Nothing doing," the big man said. "This promises to be a discussion of vital importance, and any third person would be a handicap. But if you like, I'll take a seat just outside the door. Then if you need a referee, I can barge in."

"I suppose that will have to do," Lillian said with disappointment, but I was secretly relieved. With even Harry only present, I could not say freely all the things I had to tell her.

Harry bent and kissed his wife tenderly, saying, "Remember, Sweet, Madge and you have stood shoulder to shoulder through many emergencies. I don't believe either of you is going to fail the other now."

"I don't believe it either," she said chokingly, then added, "Please go and see how Carolyn is, Darky's sister."

"I don't believe she's being tortured," he said drily.

"Of course nobody's torturing her purposely," Lillian flared, "but you know how uncomfortable Darky can make a person if he believes his bathing is needed, and Carolyn is very upset and sensitive."

To me this was proof that Carolyn had not told Lillian of how Dicky had been compelled to use force in removing her from the Westhampton railroad station and into our car, and in the tying of her ankles. Marion's "roomie" had used cunning in her appeal to Lillian's sympathies.

Harry shot a keen look at me over his wife's head.

"I'll attend to the Dicky-bird" he said, "and see that neither he nor anybody else bothers Carolyn in any way."

"That's all I want," Lillian murmured, and I mentally agreed, but for a different reason. This meant that the girl would be kept incommunicado until I could get in touch with my father, who alone must decide Carolyn's case.

"Ronald's looking awfully seedy," Harry said as he left. "Don't you think it would be a good idea to have him lie down awhile, if he will?"

"A very good idea," I said emphatically, and Lillian echoed my assent. So Ronald would know only that Lillian and Carolyn had attempted to leave the house. Carolyn would have no opportunity to see him.

Harry's departure was followed by several seconds of silence, then Lillian freed herself from my arms and stood erect, facing me.

"I have promised to listen to you, Madge," she said, "but I warn you that what you have to say had better be good, for I believe everything Carolyn has told me."

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, Sept. 22

ACCORDING to the lunar and mutual aspects of governing the affairs of this day all things may be expected to move at a particularly high tempo attended by confusion, excitement and upheaval. While well-directed energies might be turned into constructive channels the prospect of this is slight. Protect property from loss or theft.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the threshold of a year in which their own recklessness and turbulent energies, faculties and emotions may combine to frustrate and negate any desired efforts in a constructive direction. Travel and change may be perilous.

A child born on this day should be ardent, erratic, impulsive and passionate, with difficulty in directing affairs to productive channels.
